Gentlemen:

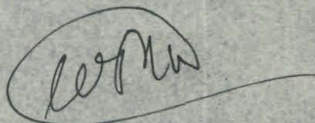

On August 2d I wrote you the following letter:

"Will you kindly send me a copy of Henry Hazlitt's new book, for which I enclose check for $2.00?"

"It is a bit ironic to see how your publicity department plays up Oscar Wilde in its advertising and gives Hazlitt's book, which I understand is a most important one, rather inconspicuous space."

I have not had a reply. Is there any reason why the book should not be forwarded?

Cordially yours,

William R. Mathews.
