Dear Henry:

I enclose photostat of a review of a new book by John Strachey, written by John K. Galbraith and published in the Observer of London, July 8, 1956. I had presumed from Mr. Galbraith's increasing respectability in the press, that he had changed his ideas since 1944 when he resigned from the OPA in preference to appearing before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. This review makes me wonder whether he has made as much progress toward the center as I thought he had.

With kindest regards,

As ever,

Alfred Kohlberg

P.S. Did you see Herbert Philbrick's column in the Sunday Tribune referring to Political Affairs for July and the big play it gave to the book of C. Wright Mills of Columbia--the new book entitled "The Power Elite"? If you don't have this, or don't have the July Political Affairs, I have them in my files and could send them to you.
