

Somebody ought to speak sharply to Nature

THERE'S a lot of loose talk these days about profits, attacking them as though they were evil.

The very existence of the world depends on profits; the improvement of the world depends on big profits. A farmer plants one potato and usually gets back 15. Even allowing for all his costs, that's more than 1000% profit! He plants one pound of corn and gets back 336 pounds—that's 33,600% profit. These are big profits. Is that bad?

Should the farmer be scorned as anti-social? Should his "excess" profit (whatever that is) be taken away from him? Should he be told that from now on he must limit his "profit" to, say, 6%?

To legislate against profits is as silly as to legislate against things growing.
