A FAMILY had failed to make a living on a worn-out New England farm. Did they demand government subsidies, checks for crops they didn't raise, high prices for crops to be burned?

They would have scorned such things—scorned and feared, for they knew from days under a foreign despot that where government money goes, government control goes, too.

No, this family put everything they owned in that wagon, and walked beside it 2,000 miles, westward. They didn't know what was ahead, but they were determined to keep on going until they found a place of freedom where they could keep their self-respect.

They were English, Scotch, Dutch, Italian, French—people from many places—all, now, Americans. They knew that the only happiness is from self-respect, and the only way to self-respect is to earn your own way, not whine for something for nothing.

Their sons and grandsons started grocery stores, became mechanics, saved their money and started factories. American machines bought by American thrift made the factories grow.

And that's America. Made by people willing to walk 2,000 miles beside a wagon—to find opportunity. If such people are gone, if all we've got left are soft weaklings who want to be taken care of, then in truth American manliness is dead, that 2,000 mile walk was wasted, and there is nothing left of America but a hollow shell.
