

With all those who cherish freedom, we mourn the passing of Leonard E. Read. As spokesman for individual freedom, limited government, private property and free markets, he lectured widely throughout this country and abroad.

In 1946, Leonard Read left a distinguished career with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce to launch the Foundation for Economic Education. Because of FEE, thousands of students and teachers have been inspired and motivated to spread the message of free enterprise.

In addition to his work at FEE, Leonard Read was one of the founders of the Mont Pelerin Society. A prolific writer, his works included numerous books as well as articles in The Freeman and elsewhere in the American and foreign press.

Leonard E. Read - a renowned, respected, articulate champion of freedom.
