Mr. Geoffrey Sowers

Dear Geoffrey:

ANYTHING THAT'S PEACEFUL

Thanks for your note regarding the binding problem.

Dr. Poirot thinks that the small quantity of copies involved is of not too great importance, and to have them bound up in whichever way is most expedient.

Sincerely,

(EBS) Eleanor B. Orsini

Dear Mrs. Orsini:

Arnold's have had some difficulty in getting the cloth for ANYTHING THAT'S PEACEFUL. This just arrived this morning and they have already started working on the cases, but will not be able to finish as scheduled. They are now planning to deliver the cloth books on Wednesday, September 16th. I hope that this is o.k.

We have ended up about 75^{} copies short on the covers for the paper editions, although we have about 300^{} sewed books that we could finish if we had covers. Could you use the additional copies, can we short you by 75 books, or do you want us to stick with the original quantity?

*Either way -

Dear Mrs. Orsini:

Arnold has just advised us that they will not have enough books ready for an advance delivery tomorrow on ANYTHING THAT'S PEACEFUL. Rather than having them shipped over the long weekend, I have suggested that they make this advance delivery on Tuesday, September 8th. This will give them some chance to make up some more books. The advance copies are going to be paper editions.

They will be mailing out tomorrow the advance copy to Dr. Reed in Austria, and the one copy to Admiral Moreell.

Very sincerely yours,
SOWERS PRINTING COMPANY
