

'Treasure Room' for Scholars

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind.—Pierre F. Goodrich, Indianapolis attorney and Wabash College trustee, surveys the library room which will house a rare collection of literary work. The room, in the college's new Lilly Library, is designed acoustically so that discussions at the huge table can be the center of seminars and scholastic conferences. The books were donated by Goodrich and will be available to Wabash students. The collection, a study of man's quest for freedom, has been gathered by Goodrich over the last 15 years. The library will be opened to the public Sunday afternoon, with dedication set for April 11.—The News Photo, Pat Redmond
