Mr. Henry Hazlitt:
c/o Newsweek
Newsweek Building
Broadway and 42nd St.
New York, N.Y., U.S.A.

Dear Mr. Hazlitt:

The seminar in economics announced in the enclosed news clipping would be an excellent opportunity for you to meet leading Japanese economists and to get a firsthand knowledge of the background, training, and views of the men who are helping to shape Japan's economic policies and who, in some cases, are teaching those who will be helping to shape Japan's economic policies during the next generation.

I notice that NEWSWEEK has been giving careful attention to the Japanese political-economic situation, with special regard to Japan's relationship to the U.S. and U.S. Far Eastern policy. Perhaps the editors of NEWSWEEK will consider this seminar important enough to warrant your visiting Japan at this time.

Enclosure:
Clipping, Japan
Times, 3 July

Sincerely yours,

Robert W. Russell
