Dear Mr. Smith:

Your very generous note of June 12th to the editors of NEWSWEEK arrived in my absence from the office.

I appreciate very much your most generous reference to my work.

Sincerely,

HH/js

Gentlemen:

I buy your magazine chiefly for Henry Hazlitt's column, although of course it presents a great many other virtues.

There is one suggestion that I'd like to make. It takes me about as long to find the index as it does to find any given article by a direct search. Why not print it on either the first or the last page so that it can be easily located?

Yours truly,

 James L. Smith
