My Dear Sir:

I am deeply appreciative of the excellent, concise and informative articles contributed by Henry Hazlett.

His treatment of inflation, with which this country is presently so sorely plagued, is by far the best that I have seen on the subject and if his articles dealing with inflation could only have been printed in all the daily papers I feel confident that a better-informed and an aroused public would already have reacted to put an end to this dishonest, cruel and destructive process about which a majority of the people are confused but nevertheless suffer grievously.

Yours very truly,
J. W. Johnson
